New ASEAN Tire Factories to Ready Kenda for Explosive Growth in 2017 : Chairman Yang

By Quincy Liang

Kenda Rubber Ind. Co., Ltd., a Taiwan Stock Exchange (TWSE)-listed tire maker headquartered in Taiwan and with production bases worldwide, recently announced that sales of automotive spare tires and electric two-wheeler tires have been increasing to help steady the momentum behind the maker's operations, albeit with demand from the Chinese market slowing to reflect the widely reported structural shift in the nation's economy from manufacturing to one driven by services and private consumption.

Yang Yin-ming, chairman of Kenda, says that his company is striving to achieve double-digit sales growth this year, while anticipating explosive growth by 2017, when the new factories in Vietnam and Indonesia will kick off mass production.

Kenda reported accumulated after-tax net profits of NT$2.68 billion (US$81.3 million) in the first three quarters of 2015, for EPS (earning per share) of NT$3.13 (US$0.09), with fourth quarter sales also being steady. Some institutional investors predict the company's 2015 EPS will exceed NT$4 (US$0.12), due to raw-material prices having been hovering at relatively low levels in the wake of 13-year lows in prices of crude oil, derivatives of which are key ingredients for tire making.

In the Chinese tire market, there were both excessive supply and falling tire prices in 2015, Yang says, due to the U.S. trade sanction on China-made tires that forced makers of tires originally for export to resell products in the domestic market. To confront such market change, Kenda moved production of automotive tires to Taiwan last year, to maintain exports to the U.S., as well as cushion impact from the overall oversupply in the Chinese market.

Yang said that last year Kenda focused on selling spare tires to global automakers, while its shipments of electric two-wheeler tires increased by 50 percent, both of which effectively kept the company's sales respectable in 2015.

Amid widely reported downbeat news of a slowing global economy, coupled with downgraded forecasts of global economic growth, recently announced plummeting Chinese exports and imports in February, and shrinking international trade as cited in a letter to the editor to the Financial Times, Yang says his company will put more efforts in the original equipment (OE) tire market by promoting products to Japanese, European and Chinese automakers, as well as continuing to try to drive spare-tire and electric two-wheeler tire sales.

The chairman also announced business deployments in Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), including a new factory in Indonesia and another in Vietnam, with Kenda planning to invest US$100 million to build an Indonesian factory that is scheduled for equipment installation to be followed by trial-production by the end of this year.

The decision to set up the Indonesian factory is based on the country's rapid economic development, massive domestic demand driven by an estimated 55 million people by 2015, and low production costs compared to those in China, Taiwan and other SE Asian nations, especially after the sharp depreciation of the rupiah, Yang says. With trial-production scheduled to begin in the fourth quarter of 2016, the new facility will initially focus on bicycle and motorcycle tires, but may expand into passenger car radial (PCR) tires, says Yang. The initial daily production capacity at the new factory will total 20,000 bicycle and 10,000 motorcycle tires.

The Taiwanese tire maker is also scheduled to kick off capacity expansion in Vietnam by constructing the second Vietnamese factory. The second Vietnamese facility is expected to be completed by 2017 to be ready for mass production of PCR tires with daily capacity of about 5,000 units, Yang says.

With the two new facilities, Yang says, Kenda is expected to effectively meet increasing demand from the ASEAN market, as well as set up more capacity to export tires to the U.S. and European markets, which will help Kenda to be ready to deal with explosive growth. CENS

Year of Monkey Sees Jan. New-car Sales in Taiwan Down 1.1% YoY

Some 47,477 new cars (including light commercial vehicles as paneled vans) were sold in Taiwan in the first month of 2016, up 13.5 percent from the previous month, or month-on-month (MoM), but a 1.1 percent decline from the same period of last year, or year-on-year (YoY), according to statistics compiled by Taiwan's Ministry of Transportation and Communications (MOTC).

Industry experts pointed to the lack of new launches in 2016 as the indication of the ho-hum nature of Taiwan's car market, with only one new model, Toyota Prius hybrid, being introduced by the vendor in January, and none in February.

Hotai Motor Co. Ltd., Taiwanese agent of Toyota and Lexus and the No. 1 auto vendor on the island in the past 14 years by market share in a row, continued to lead as auto distributor in January again by selling 15,582 units, up 3.8 percent MoM and 1.5 percent YoY, for a market share of 32.8 percent.

China Motor Corp. (CMC), Taiwanese assembler, agent of Mitsubishi and vendor of its own CMC lineup, was the No. 2 vendor in January by selling 5,115 units, a 52.8 percent MoM increase but a 0.2 MoM decrease, representing a market share of 10.8 percent.

Yulon Nissan Motor Co., Taiwanese agent of Nissan and Infiniti and the No. 2 auto vendor with only a minor lead over CMC in 2015 (No. 3 in 2014), sold 5,025 new vehicles in January, up 22.1 percent MoM but down 5.7 percent YoY, leading to 10.6 percent market share (10.3 percent in 2015).

Honda Taiwan Motor Co., wholly-owned local subsidiary of Honda Japan, sold 3,387 new cars to report a 12.2 percent MoM and 6.5 percent YoY volume growth, and market share of 7.1 percent. The firm attributes its enviable sales in January to hot sales of the imported Odyssey multi-purpose van (MPV) and other models with upgraded equipment.

Mercedes-Benz Taiwan, the local subsidiary of the German brand, again outshined other imported brands, and even locally-assembled nameplates, in January to be the No. 5 vendor, by selling 2,555 units, a 26.2 percent MoM and 22.0 percent YoY increase. Mercedes-Benz Taiwan delivered more than 350 new GLC-class SUVs and more than 300 GLE/ GLE coupes in January, posting clear sales gain during the month. And the local subsidiary is very confident to achieve continually improving monthly sales in the following months. The vendor's January market share was 5.4 percent.

January's No. 6 vendor was Ford Lio Ho Motor Co., Taiwanese subsidiary of Ford Motor Company of the U.S., which sold 2,146 new cars, winning market share of 4.5 percent. Ford's sales saw a 2.6 percent MoM and 11.6 percent YoY decline.

The No. 7 through No. 10 auto brands were Mazda (import), BMW (import), Luxgen (locally-assembled and own-brand of local Yulon Group) and Hyundai (locally- assembled and imported) by Sanyang Motor Co., Ltd., which sold 2,078, 2,048, 2,017 and 1,296 units, respectively.

Luxgen saw intriguing performance in January: its volume declined 22.8 percent YoY, but rose 72.8 percent MoM. Industry insiders explained that the brand is accustomed to seeing relatively higher monthly growth in January as its sales division often accumulates the vehicles ordered late in the year to be delivered next year, mainly to satisfy prudent buyers of Luxgens who tend to be more careful about the licensing date to achieve higher residual or resale value.

Imports

The imported car market share in Taiwan has been rising rapidly in recent years, contrasting the trend even in 2015 when the island's overall new-car market saw a 0.7 percent drop from the previous year, with the total imported-car sales volume still posting an eye-catching YoY increase of 13.7 percent.

In January, imported car sales continued to enjoy a 5 percent YoY growth, compared to the 1.1 percent YoY drop in the overall market, with the total sales volume being 16,161 units to represent market share of 34 percent.

Engine Mount, Arm Bush, Strut Mount, Air Intake Hose, Stabilizer Bush, Rubber Parts

You can order our Car & Art or Type X House brands, or send us your OEM/ODM specifications for custom items. Either way, we'll consolidate your orders into one shipment, and send the whole lot to you in 30 days or less. Much easier than, say, calling and ordering from 10 different suppliers, and then receiving 10 different shipments on different days, and paying shipping on 10 different orders.
