Taiwanese Furniture Parts Suppliers Take on Economic Uncertainty with Different Strategies

By STEVE CHUANG

Despite global economic uncertainties, most of Taiwanese furniture parts makers have yet to slow their pursuit of sustainable development through improving production capability and product quality to win trust from global buyers.

The following sums up three manufacturers noted for consistent efforts on sharpening competitive edges differently.

Liang Harn

One supplier who competes well on consummate production capability is Liang Harn Industry Co., Ltd., founded in 1986 in Taichung County, central Taiwan.

Liang Harn started out by making plastic rollers and bearings for OA and household furniture. Angus Tsai, the manager of the company, said that his company, to set itself apart from competitors, insistently adopted POM (polyacetal) plastic exclusively imported from Germany to produce rollers and meticulously built steel balls into each of its plastic rollers for structural durability and long lifespan.

Such dedication to quality aided the company to emerge in the line, and quickly evolve into the largest supplier with a 60%-plus share of Taiwan's plastic roller market in early 1990s, according to Tsai. He went on that his company also became Japan-based Hitachi Koki's first certificated foreign supplier of plastic rollers during the span. Bolstered by consummate production capability and solid recognition among buyers, the company has been renowned as a top-notch supplier of this kind in Taiwan.

Considering that ball bearing slides were increasingly applied in furniture as an economical alternative to plastic rollers during the 1990s, Tsai's company resolved to develop its OEM (original equipment manufacturing) business in 2000 and successfully became part of a European company's supply chain of K/D furniture parts. Since then, the company has broadened its product lines to houseware and K/D furniture parts, such as plastic and zinc alloy hinges, adjustable feet and drawer slide rails.

Brisk Growth on Well-honed Production Capability

"In fact," Tsai said, "Liang Harnng has remained relatively brisk growth for the years, mostly on stable orders from customers in both the U.S. and Europe, the primary overseas markets we have relied on. It boils down to our well-honed production capability that gives us solid ground to compete in the increasingly competitive market."

Tsai reported that Liang Harnng boasts a full line of manufacturing facilities for pressing, bending, welding and so forth, along with a complete powder coating line and plastic injection molding line. "With these facilities, we achieve over a self-sufficient rate 80% in production," stated Tsai. "This enables us to better satisfy customers with speedy prototyping and flexible production." Noteworthy is that almost all of the company's plastic injection molding machines had been in full swing during the last quarter of last year to stem its growth.

"As the market is ever-changing, high-variety production is key for Taiwanese suppliers to surviving and competing in the competitive landscape nowadays," commented Tsai. "And our well-honed, flexible production capability effectively leverages our competitive advantages."

To maintain growth momentum in the year ahead, Tsai said that Liang Harnng will reinforce cooperation with customers on joint development of new products. "We are gradually diversifying from OEM into ODM (original design manufacturing), mainly based on customers' trust in our capability."

Liang Harnng's newly launched adjustable table leg is an example. Tsai introduced that the leg was developed out of nothing completely based on the company's know-how and experience to meet a European client's requirement, and allows easy, effortless 15cm height adjustment, with the body made of aluminum die castings coupled with an exquisitely coated plastic cover at the end for an integrally shaped exterior structure, ideal for use in both commercial and household furniture.

According to Tsai, his company spent considerably developing the product and needed molds, and the investment has borne fruit. "Since the leg was completed in December, we have delivered two batches of the product to the customer so far," reported the manager. "This makes us increasingly optimistic about the product's marketability, and more confident of our R&D and production capability."

Tsai concluded that while continuously improving its production capability and factory efficiency, his company is trying to make breakthroughs in new product development, its strategy for sustainable development.

Shen Shan

Another maker that has placed its heavy emphasis also on setting up sound, integrated production lines in house is Shen Shan Internatinoal Glide Mfg. Corp., established in 1981 in Taichung County, central Taiwan.

Shen Shan started by turning out plastic injection furniture parts and, with more than 25 years of dedication to the field, achieved comprehensiveness in its product portfolio. At the moment, the company, with 35 workers in its 33000-square-meter plant, manufactures a variety of plastic furniture parts, including plugs, casters and related accessories, as well as a series of hardware parts, which have been exported to Australia, the U.S., Germany and Canada.

The company's managing director Wu Sen-mao said that as a seasoned furniture parts maker on both an OEM and ODM basis, Shen Shan is quite proud of its sound production lines and warehousing facilities. However, the company's experienced knowledge in developing molds backs it to grow into a quite competitive maker in the line. At present, the company has stocked more than 1,000 kinds of molds in its plant.

"Thanks to ability of developing molds in house, Shen Shan achieves production efficiency in the way that it, if necessary, can directly add additional molds to accelerate production to shorten delivery time for customers," Wu commented. "In addition, the ability brings high flexibility in production and variety in products and helps us to integrate sound production lines in the factory to secure good product quality and to effectively cut production costs."

Experienced-based R&D

R&D is also Shen Shan's advantage to compete against conventional furniture parts makers. "Because Shen Shan grasps know-how in applications of industrial plastic, such as PVC and PE (polyethylene), it can provide professional advice and helpful information about material characteristics for customers to learn when they want to develop new furniture parts," Wu said. "For example, we would help customers to reinforce structure of new parts and improve material formula to adept the parts for use in different environment conditions."

With a skillful R&D workforce, the company has recently added medical hardware and related accessories in its product collection, which require more advanced production technology and facilities to produce. In other words, debut of the new product lineup reflects the company's proven R&D capability.

"I must say that Shen Shan's long-time dedication to production is simply for customer's trust. Through all possible methods we can apply to reinforce our production capability, Shen Shan is sincere to create win-win opportunities for both it and customers."

OHLA

OHLA Plastic Co., Ltd., established in 1993 in Taiwan's central county of Taichung is highlighted with its expertise offered to clients and consistent effort on organization management.

OHLA's available product category includes casters, plastic hardware and tube plugs for OA furniture, such as computer desks, and screw drivers. Putting heavy emphasis on quality, the company has exhausted itself on controlling outsourced raw material, making its products well recognized in the market. Although facing pressure to start providing low-price parts, it is unwilling to compromised poor quality.

OLHA pays strong attention to customer services based on its consummate expertise in making furniture parts. Joan Chen, senior sales manager of the company, said, "We can offer know-how and advice for clients with new ideas and design for furniture parts, and support them to develop those." She added. "For example, when receiving clients' drawings or prototypes of new furniture used in cold areas, we would suggest them to use proper, cold-resistant material to make the new product for sturdy structure."

Also, with strong capability of mould design and production, OHLA is good at analyzing feasibility of a new product for its clients, and this is also another considerate service it can offer based on its expertise, according to Chen. In short, along with invaluable expertise relating to production of furniture parts, the company succeeded in differing from rivals, who can merely deliver low-end products with large batches.

Sound Management

On the other hand, to create more value to compete against rivals, recently OHLA has taken moves to conduct a series of improvement measures in the organization, including workforce training, and sales, production, R&D management, while others in the line have ignored doing that.

Chen said, "We pursue better operation performance and sales through improving financial structure and product quality respectively, and have worked hard in PM (production management)." For instance, the company already changed their packaging process and methods to turn its furniture parts durable to store, with clients once showing that problem. In any case, OHLA is to create value between itself and customers, according to Chen.

To survive the increasingly tougher global competition, OHLA has moved to develop high-end parts for medical and sports devices for high added value. By sharpening its competitiveness in production, R&D and services, the company wants to keep growing even under overwhelming pressure from rivals. CENS

3D 列印耗材 Printer Filament

*Top quality, pure, anti-clogging,

Taiwan-made for consistent quality

Day Tay's 3D printer filaments have high purity to prevent a printer nozzle from being clogged during operation.

Day Tay Plastic Industry Ltd.

Rigid and flexible extruded plastic tubes, strips, air hoses, soaker hoses, 3D printer filaments

Plastics have come a long way as one of the most important materials for diverse products, including garden hoses and accessories, since the 1960s, to have replaced its predecessor natural rubber that had been used as early as 1600 BC. With great malleability, structural durability and lightweight, such material has also been widely applied in the form of various filaments in 3D printing. Among Taiwanese suppliers of plastic materials, Day Tay Plastic Industry Ltd. supplies anti-clogging 3D printer filament.

The 3D printer filament from Day Tay is made of high-grade plastics coupled with the maker's well-honed manufacturing techniques and rich knowledge of plastic properties, with the whole production strictly controlled according to international standards at the firm's modern factory. The process gives the firm's filament excellent purity and consistent diameter, important characteristics for such products, given that filaments are just like the blood of a printer, which is pulled out of a nozzle by an extruder wheel to the hot end and then molded into various shapes as needed. Without the said characteristics, filaments would easily compromise the functionality and service life of a 3D printer.

Day Tay's anti-clogging, high-quality 3D printer filament is available in many colors, and ensures high printing effectiveness and efficiency as an ideal product for end-users from different industries.

Founded in 1996, Day Tay Plastic Industry Ltd. is a specialized supplier of various extruded plastic products, mainly tubing products and plastic components and accessories.
