Technology Advances Drive Changes in the Design of Workspace Furniture

The increasing use of mobile devices gives rise to "the chair as an office"

By MICHELLE HSU

Whatever you call the space where you work at home--studio, workstation, home office--the furniture you use there is undergoing drastic changes along with the evolution of lifestyles and working habits brought on by the use of PCs and mobile devices.

Advances in information, communication, and network technologies have driven the rise of new work patterns all over the world, and the virtual office, mobile office, and home office are growing in popularity. One result of this development has been significant changes in the design and quality of the office environment and its furniture.

During the era of the PC, a computer desk is all people need to be efficient, organized, and comfortable at work or at home. Built to serve as an ideal workstation, a computer desk is composed of drawers and storage space where users can keep their files and resources handy, along with more than enough surface space to ensure that everything they need can be neatly kept right in front of them.

Today, workplace furniture has to be much more functional than ever.

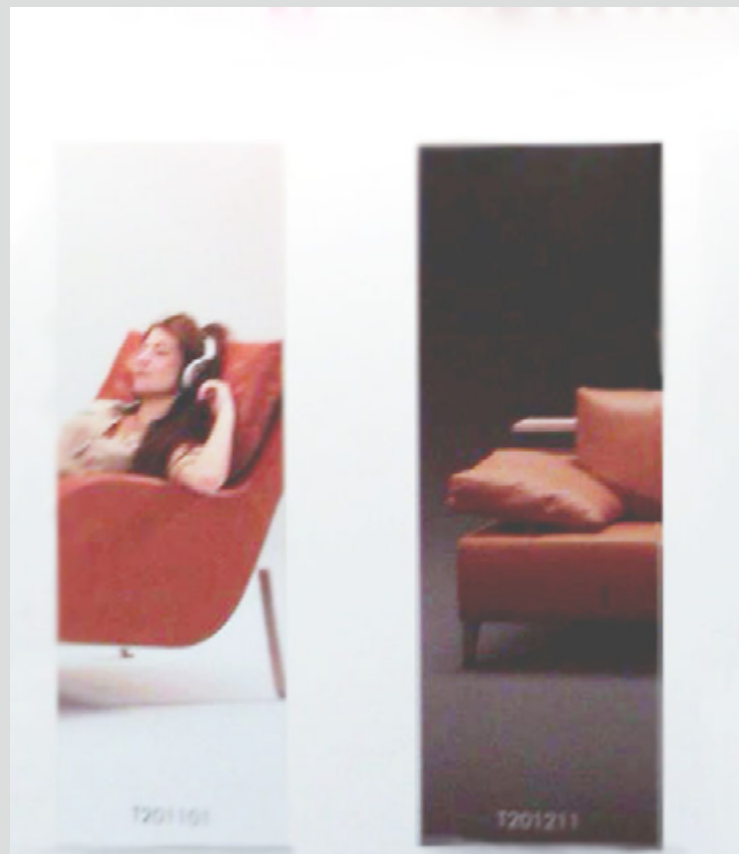

Today, mobile handsets have become a major tool for work. Documents that used to be on paper can now come in electronic form and no longer need a large physical storage space. What people need to handle documentation now is a small desk and a handy mobile phone or tablet PC with a large storage capacity and connection capability. This has led to major changes in the "office setting." Some people claim that desks have become completely unnecessary, and that only a single chair is enough to support someone at work.

Changes differ, and along with them users' needs, in different areas and countries. According to press reports, with city dwellers striving for ever more efficiency and greater information exchange, Europe and the United States have long had the speed and convenience provided by rural urbanization and urban ruralization. Today, there is no great difference between lifestyles in the city and in the countryside in these areas.

In the Asia-Pacific region, however, there are still significant differences between the two. In recent years in China, the urbanization of townships has been increasingly rapid and is now irreversible. This, naturally, also affects the development of the furniture and decorating industries. Network and television marketing have now entered the RTA (ready-to-assemble) age which first saw light of day in the West.

Functional Furniture

"Today, the furniture of a working space is required to be much more functional than ever," observed Dan Ihreborn, a Swedish designer who has been working with Taiwan's Soflex Furniture for years. Lifestyle habits today tend toward the use of multi-functional mobile devices as the main tool for work. Sometimes a lounge chair is enough; in that case the chair becomes more functional, and this leads to greater room for changes in design.

Providing a comfortable place to sit is the key requirement for the Soflex Group's furniture design.

"Simplicity is not only for saving space or materials," Ihreborn pointed out, "but it also makes the furniture lightweight and convenient to move, and thus suitable to go along with mobile devices. A combination of simple appearance and multi-functions is a major feature of the furniture design for a working space in either the home or office building.

The Kuoching Group, one of the leading chair makers in Taiwan, introduced several new chairs earlier this year; at first glance all look like leisure chairs, but they are represented as being suitable for use as working chairs because lots of people like to sit and work with a mobile handset.

With this trend, providing a comfortable seat for work is the key issue in the design of work furniture. Also, the colors chosen for such furniture are mostly the bright and light shades, which are considered to have the "function" of cheering people up.

Given the present widespread demand for personalized products, product diversification is another key trend in design for the Kuoching Group.

The Kuoching Group emphasizes "product diversification" as a key element in the design of "personalized" chairs.

SOHO Furniture

While chairs draw much more attention in the design of office furniture today, Sing Bee Furniture Co.,Ltd., one of the leading home office furniture manufacturers in Taiwan, emphasizes the design of desks and chairs equally. After all, it takes both to make a full set of work furniture.

As company executives observe, "Integrated system furniture and European-style independent desk systems are becoming new mainstream trends." Sing Bee is one of the oldest computer desk manufacturers in Taiwan, transformed from a major school desk and chair maker. Be constantly adjusting its product line to fit the latest trends, Sing Bee has developed a wide range of computer desks and chairs, including models designed for use with mobile devices.

"In the future, mobile office furniture and SOHO (small office and home office) furniture will also become the concept furniture for the new kind of office," company officials believe.

Ever since its founding, Sing Bee has held to a policy of "research innovation, insistence on quality, and shared honors," and it is this policy that pushes the company to consistently develop new products that meet consumers' demand for high-quality, multi-functional, and diverse products, and to improve on its own competitive edge by using creative, sophisticated, and market-segmentation development strategies to strengthen its advantage in the industry and establish its own export brand.

Sing Bee develops home-use products such as children's growth chairs and tables along with ergonomic chairs that meet children's learning needs. It has established direct sales and service channels in Taiwan, Hong Kong, and mainland China.

From the outset the company has been well aware that for Taiwanese office furniture to enter the international market and for the industry to produce value-added products, it would have to constantly cultivate a pool of professional design talent and strive toward the development of ergonomic, multi-functional, high-quality office furniture made from recyclable materials.

Even as it develops new designs, Sing Bee constantly improves its old products to meet the need for multi-function furniture.

And the results are impressive. Not only has the company repeatedly won Taiwan furniture design awards, it currently holds 106 patents and continues adding to the number each year.

The company specializes in making children's desks and chairs, computer desks, furniture hardware, OA chairs, row seating, display racks/storage racks, chair mechanisms, and parts. It's well-rounded R&D team has been working out a succession of superb products for years.

While developing new product designs, Sing Bee also continuously improves its old products, combining the diverse objectives of furniture which is DIY-ready, easy to assemble, time and labor-saving, beautiful, artistic, and creative. CENS

Three OA Furniture Makers in Taiwan Highlighted for User-friendly Designs

Integrated and BIFMA-certified manufacturing among local makers' advantages

Compiled by KEN LIU

While some furniture makers in Taiwan have caught some global buyers' attention for being able to supply ergonomic OA (office automation) and residential furnishings, the majority continue to take a backseat to high-profile, branded makers in the West, who traditionally have been aware of the health-enhancing benefits of well-designed chairs, sofas and beds. The discussion of why western furniture designers have historically been spotlighted as pioneers would occupy tomes, not least of which involving issues as value systems, democratization of nations, socio-economic development. There is no simple answer to why Herman Miller and his peers were designing cutting-edge, ergonomic furniture when much of Asia was mired in poverty. In fact the word "ergonomic" does not have an equivalent in Chinese dictionaries nor had been a valued concept in Taiwanese and Asian furniture design and manufacture before wide-spread industrialization in the region.

But and as in most other manufacturing sectors in Taiwan since foreign buyers began sourcing products on the island, furniture makers have come a long way to slowly evolve from being mere original equipment manufacturers (OEM) to original brand and design manufacturers. Most suppliers in Taiwan, however, are unlikely college-grads born post-1980, so may be too insular for their own good, and lack overseas business experience to know how to set up distribution and marketing abroad.

The harsh realities of business also dictate furniture making in Taiwan, whose suppliers are often too busy filling OEM orders or rounding up new orders to think about innovative designs or new business models. And fluctuating business cycles have never allowed makers to build robust finances to invest significantly in R&D and hire talented designers, whose efforts must be continually supported for years before commercial success is achieved.

Fortunately Taiwan's OA furniture makers learn quickly as they adopt more adjustability in product designs, eco-friendly materials as nonflammable and nontoxic plastics, not to mention lighter yet more durable materials. And most of the island's furniture makers have set up highly integrated manufacturing to ensure product quality as OEMs, knowing they are more successful as contract suppliers to foreign brand-name distributors.

Taiwan makers' primary advantages to attract orders from distributors include patented products and technologies, as well as the U.S. Business and Institutional

Kuang Shin's ET-100 BK worktable has adjustable tabletop and legs.

Furniture Manufacturers Association (BIFMA) certifications, which prove safety, performance of office furniture.

Kuang Shin

Kuang Shin Enterprise Co., Ltd. has been in the office furniture industry for over 25 years, mainly making kids' furniture, OA chairs, and computer desks and now promoting the ET-100 BK series of worktables, which was debuted late 2014.

The tables, measuring 120cm (W) x 88cm (D) x 120cm (H) and weighing 50 kilograms, come with a two-piece particle-board tabletop whose front is tiltable 25 degrees from the horizontal, and two aluminum telescopic legs that rise to maximum of 120cm and down to 73cm, features of which make the tables ergonomic.

The front top's tilt is adjusted manually by brake-pad mechanism while the leg height is controlled by a screw-rod driven by motor, eliminating the concern of liquid leakage which typically happens to gas springs.

Attached to the front edge is an aluminum channel to hold stationery like pens and erasers. The back top, fixed horizontally, is for carrying computer monitors or books, with both tops being nonflammable and scratch resistant.

The two legs, each of which installed in a RoHS-compliant iron bar to strengthen vertical stability, are extruded to ensure the excellent fitting of the inner part in the outer.

The legs carry maximum 100 kilograms and can be raised 24 millimeters per second. A built-in circuit shuts off the power to protect the CE-certified motor (powered by 110/230V AC wall socket) upon detecting overload. The legs are clamped by a force of 100 kilogram to prevent collapse from power outage.

ET-100 BK is a patented knock-down table, with parts mostly made in Taiwan and backed by a one-year warranty.

Pengxi Enterprise

Pengxi Enterprise Co., Ltd., founded in 1992 to make office chairs, is promoting a two-piece-backrest office chair, featuring a pair of patented rubber pads on the backrest supports to cushion the chair's two backrest.

A rubber mechanism enables Pengxi's two-piece backrest chair to to be more freely angle-adjusted to suit many body types.

Company chief executive officer (CEO), Huang Chien-yu, stresses that the rubber pieces allow the two soft, ergonomic backrests to more freely adjust to body positions. The backrest system does not only support the back of a user but offers sense of "personal touch" due to softness of the rubber to provide really comfortable sitting experience.

Huang points out that two-piece backrest chairs are ubiquitous but none uses such a thoughtful device. The chair was invented by German manufacturers and has been copied everywhere, but all of these manufacturers use hard materials like plastics or metal to result in clunky adjustment.

The rubber pad, Huang notes, has passed tests for resistance to cold and tension. The two backrest pieces are basically made of elastic foam while the seat is foam molded, both of which feature excellent ventilation.

The pad is patent pending for structure in the United States, Taiwan, China, Germany and Japan.

According to Huang, Pengxi had invested over NT$7 million (US$225,800) in the molds of the two-piece backrest chair.

Also the backrest is adjustable in height and backward tilt in addition to individually angle-adjustable pieces. The seat is adjustable in height and forward and backward slide. The all-round adjustability enables the chair to suit all body types.

Huang points out that a two-piece backrest chair is more ergonomic than a one-piece chair mostly due to individual adjustability of the two pieces, hence enabling smoother angle adjustment than one-piece product.

The company mostly promotes products to upscale consumers, stressing the use of high-performance materials and in-house designs. We are not afraid of copycats because we always emphasize quality and design. So, our products are quite popular at distributors to create a win-win situation, she says.

The company's products are sold in China, the United States, Germany and Japan, with China absorbing the majority and on average 15-16 40-foot containers of chairs shipped a year.

Chueng Shin

The 1981-founded Chueng Shin Co., Ltd. is one of a handful OA chair makers in Taiwan that has in-house mold-tooling, R&D, injection-molding, coating and testing units capable of testing to BIFMA standards, enabling independent design and development of 90 percent of the chair parts. Highly integrated manufacturing capability makes the company very efficient in development of proprietary products, says sales manager, Pearl Chang.

The company, according to Chang, has spent millions of NT-dollar on testing equipment not to mention average annual expenditure of over NT$10 million (US$322,580) on new product development to meet demands of picky customers worldwide. Each year, we have to launch tens of new products.

The BIPOSE is Chueng Shin's OA chair of aluminum, engineering plastics, toxic-free metal pipes, nonflammable foams, and silky fabric materials.

The company also contracts independent designers to develop products with innovative exterior and utility. Only by doing so do our customers share our vision, Chang stresses.

She points out that a good office chair is just like a quality dress to stress not just comfort in design but also structural safety and material durability, features of which are found in the company's X2, ASTRO, and BIPOSE series of chairs.

These series all feature light yet durable materials, sleek exterior, and comfort. Their headrest, armrests, backrest and seat are adjustable to fit users' body type and position, with the parts made of aluminum, engineering plastics, toxic-free metal pipes, nonflammable foams, and silky fabric materials.

The company is developing a chair that uses a very durable fabric for the seat, which does not need any hard material or metal to support user's weight.

The company ships around 98 percent of its products overseas to brand-name customers who contract design and manufacturing services, not mega stores as Walmart. We do business only with high-end stores because we sell high value-added products. Mega stores typically buy from mainland Chinese manufacturers for huge quantity at low prices, Chang stresses.

She says Chueng Shine is well known in Japan's OA-furniture market for being an early entrant. We were contracted by a Japanese brand-name supplier to make the chairs for the Narita International Airport. Also, we were contracted by the Tan Son Hhat International Airport of Vietnam to supply the chairs.

The maker also counts the Middle East and Russia among its important markets. CENS

Chiao Sen Wooden Industry Co., Ltd. has been engaged in the woodworking industry for over 30 years, specializing in wooden-furnishing manufacturing including mirror or piano finish on contract basis.

Its product lineup includes storage boxes, boxes, lamp trays, lamp holders, photo and picture frames, digital photo frames, as well as wooden/bamboo and rattan parts and fittings; while it is experienced in processing woods and minerals as rocks.

Besides able to offer mutually-profitable solutions, the maker also provides powder coating that features resistance to scratch, abrasion and moisture, with the processing being eco-friendly, emitting zero pollution and consuming low energy.

Another advantage of powder coating is its low-noise pollution because it eliminates the need for polishing; while powder overspray can be recycled, and the coating can be finished in one step to minimize production cost and enhance quality.

In addition, the process uses nontoxic and odorless solvents to leave finished products without reeking smell to render products more user-friendly and with selling point; while the coating is vibrant, durable, washable, health-enhancing, and augments life quality.

The medium-density fiberboards (MDFs) coated with company's latest technology are applicable to waterproof sanitary cupboards; desktop and laminate for display shelf that require durability and scratch resistance; houseware whose use involve physical contact with people; children furniture conforming to non-toxic requirement; and bentwood desks and chairs whose coating and sanding otherwise consume much time and labor.

The company has passed SGS verification on its processing quality.

Established in 2006 in Taiwan with Zhangjiagang Hana Metal as its plant in China, Hanaco Group has over the years steadily grown into one of the few large furniture makers and sellers capable of everything from sourcing to product completion. We've invested some US$10 million in the business so far, with over 800 employees in a 90,000 sq.m.-plus factory to turn out 200 40-foot containers of goods monthly, 80% of which exported to Japan and the rest goes to Europe and the US. We use imported furniture production lines for material processing to furniture completion in-house, enabling easier quality control while significantly enhancing price competitiveness of products. Our integrated automated production encompasses melamine veneering, PVC/PU sheet veneering, vacuum forming, plate processing, metalworking, powder coating, plastic injection moldin ...

Founded in 1991, we started business in Taichung, central Taiwan as a wooden furniture production organizer then a seller, repairer of woodworking machinery and provider of designer/set-up services for hardware/software control systems of CNC machinery. Providing wide-angle services and prioritizing customers have enabled us to establish long-term business relationships worldwide. By importing used turnkey facilities from Germany, Italy, Spain and Japan starting in 1995, we repair and retrofit machinery with new parts made in Taiwan before exporting to buyers in Thailand and China as turnkey facilities. Also from 2001, we started to build a warehouse in Dongguan, China to store wide-ranging retrofitted machinery to provide prompt delivery to local buyers. In 2002, we set up branches in Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam and Shanghai, China for prompt ...

DAY TAY PLASTIC INDUSTRY LTD.

3D 列印耗材 Printer Filament

Top quality, pure, anti-clogging, precise for high effectiveness

Taiwan-made for consistent quality

Day Tay's 3D printer filaments have high purity to prevent a printer nozzle from being clogged during operation.

Day Tay Plastic Industry Ltd.

Rigid and flexible extruded plastic tubes, strips, air hoses, soaker hoses, 3D printer filaments

Plastics have come a long way as one of the most important materials for diverse products, including garden hoses and accessories, since the 1960s, to have replaced its predecessor natural rubber that had been used as early as 1600 BC. With great malleability, structural durability and lightweight, such material has also been widely applied in the form of various filaments in 3D printing. Among Taiwanese suppliers of plastic materials, Day Tay Plastic Industry Ltd. supplies anti-clogging 3D printer filament.

The 3D printer filament from Day Tay is made of high-grade plastics coupled with the maker's well-honed manufacturing techniques and rich knowledge of plastic properties, with the whole production strictly controlled according to international standards at the firm's modern factory. The process gives the firm's filament excellent purity and consistent diameter, important characteristics for such products, given that filaments are just like the blood of a printer, which is pulled out of a nozzle by an extruder wheel to the hot end and then molded into various shapes as needed. Without the said characteristics, filaments would easily compromise the functionality and service life of a 3D printer.

Day Tay's anti-clogging, high-quality 3D printer filament is available in many colors, and ensures high printing effectiveness and efficiency as an ideal product for end-users from different industries.

Founded in 1996, Day Tay Plastic Industry Ltd. is a specialized supplier of various extruded plastic products, mainly tubing products and plastic components and accessories.
